Kaipara at the Tui Awards

Twenty senior music students spent the day at the Tui Music Awards in Auckland at the invitation of the show's sound engineer, Gavin Downey. They watched the rehearsals and toured backstage before being given special seats for the night. Two students worked on the show. Keria Paterson was a stage hand and Josh Somervell helped with the sound. They were right on the edge of the red carpet and there were just a few photos taken with the stars. Won't be long before Kaipara students are part of the show!

Yes, there are still school exams

While there are many ways students have their work assessed these days, there are still old fashioned, sit at your desks in silence, examinations. What would New Zealand secondary schools be without their November exam season?

Brave Bess and the ANZAC Horses by Susan Brocker

A true story of courage and loyalty. Bess and her companions overcame their fear to stand by their masters on the battlefields, often in harsh desert conditions. There are pictures throughout the book of the wonderful, brave horses that went to war. In fact, 10,238 horses were sent to war between 1914 and 1916, of these only Bess came home again.
